

How to Make a Quipa

Quipus can be described as ancient books, they don't have letters or numbers, instead they were made by a series of wool and cotton strings tied together with knots of different sizes and shapes.

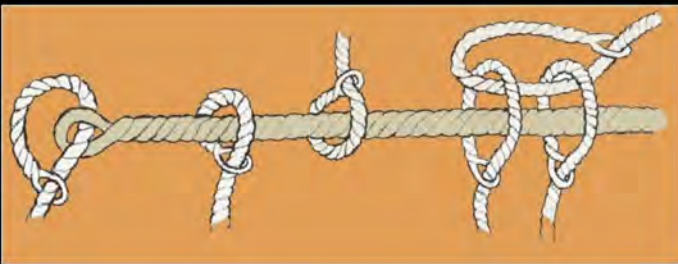

Wrap your yarn around a hook or any other support, and keep the two ends together. Start twisting it.

You need to twist it for several minutes, until it feels really hard to keep doing it.

Once you are done, take it out of the hook and fold in half. It will be very twisted, just pull the ends and you will get a beautiful sting.

These are some the different ways you can attach the pendant strings to the main cord.
